AAUT Awards Team Director

PROFESSOR ANGELA CARBONE

Dear Colleagues

This month we have line up informative professional development sessions that applicants would not want to miss. For the first time, we have three specific sessions on Citation, Program Award and Teaching Award application writing session. For each session, the guest speakers are the Chair of the Awards Committee and 2021 recipients to share tips on writing a successful application. See below for more details.

Next, I would like to thank institutions for your Neville Bonner Award for Indigenous Education nominees registration. This year, we have received 17 registration from 13 institutions. The Neville Bonner Award nominees have now been invited to the professional development sessions and have allocated AAUTN mentors.

It is so great to see state-based ceremony return to face-to face-event. A heartfelt thank you to the hosting institutions, University of Notre Dame, Monash University, QUT, University of Wollongong and SANTPEN for organising and celebrating the achievement of the 2021 AAUT recipients. These events are by invitation only. Check out the photo links below.

Additionally, I encourage you to watch the 2021 Early Career Teaching Excellence recipients video series: Dr Kath O'Brien (QUT) and Dr Nick Brown (RMIT) sharing their journey and provides encouragement to aspiring applicants.

Lastly, I was interviewed by Associate Professor Michael Cowling from CQU and Vice-President of ASCILITE, as part of his Podcast series called Wavelength, about AAUT awards. Check out the 2022 The ASCILITE Wavelength Podcast, (Transcript).

We look forward to seeing you at the professional development sessions.

Regards,
Angela
